FOR HER CHILDREN'S SAKE.

A Texas Widow who Proposed to Sacrifice Her Own Feelings.

When Maj. Converse was laying out the line of the Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio railroad he spent several days in obtaining the right of way through the little town of Kingsbury. There was considerable opposition on the part of some of the citizens to granting the right of way unless they received extraordinary remuneration.

Among those who regretted the railroad as a nuisance was a hard-headed widow of about 50 years of age, who owned a small farm. She said that if she was not compelled to have $100 right off she would fight the company until a certain warm place froze over.

"That ere road will run over some of my cows, but I've got to have money," she said.

"It will not be as bad as you imagine," replied Maj. Converse, soothingly.

"It will be a heap wuss. The sparks from the locomotive will set fire to my haystacks. But necessity knows no laws. I reckon I'll have to sign the right of way, but I'd rather take pizen."

"I don't think that you will be disturbed as much as you suppose."

"I never expect to get another wink of sleep at nights for them trains. Just know my health'll break down. I'll be in my grave before a year, but hand out yer hundred dollars and it's a whack. I'll do it on account of the children. What won't a woman do for her own flesh and blood?"

Major Converse handed over the money and the widow signed the document cheerfully.

"Do you really need the money so badly?" asked Maj. Converse, as he folded up the document and put it in his pocket.

"The worst in the world, stranger. A gentleman from Galveston—a drummer I believe he call him—visits me every time he comes to this town. The last time he was here he called me his gazelle, and wanted to kiss me, but I told him, 'no, not yet.'"

"I understand. He is paying you attentions."

"And he's going to be here again in about two weeks. He is right on the ragged edge of proposing, but if I don't encourage him he may grow cold and listless. It may be good-by-John with me unless I do my part. You know how men are. They are so unreliable."

"Yes, I understand. You want to lend him the money," said Converse.

"Not much I am going to lend him any money. But I am going to San Antonio to-morrow, and I'll be a new silk dress and a new hat, and I'm going to have a new set of false teeth built, and if I ain't Mrs. Drummer in about three weeks, it won't be my fault."

"Do you really love him?" asked Maj. Converse.

"No, I'll never love again. But he's so kind to the children, and my poor children need a protector. 'What's your ready to make any sacrifice. I don't think we ought to take our own feelings into consideration when the welfare of our offspring is concerned. Do you know who is the best dentist in San Antonio?"

"The Hewgaw"

The "hewgaw" is the latest novelty among musical instruments. It is a twin to the "kazoo," but it is bigger, costs more, and looks like an infernal machine. The "hewgaw" was intended to be a modification of the banjo. Attached to an ordinary banjo drum at one point on its circumference is a bar having ten piano-like keys. Running beneath the keys and the drum is a single string of catgut, fastened to the extreme end of the bar of piano keys and to the opposite point on the circumference of the drum. The shaft of wood has on it a toothed wheel. As the shaft turns the teeth strike the string and cause the vibrations. The sound emitted is a cross between the filing of a saw and grinding of a coffee-mill. Pressure upon the piano keys while the shaft is being turned varies the notes.

Indiana Soup.

"T-talk 'bout e-eatin' an' d-drinkin' s'much as ye please," said a Wabash valley hoocher, "yer d-dorripin' an' yer b-buffetsteaks, an' yer s-sot-shall o-c-rabs, an' yer c-champagne, an' all them sort of things, but if yer w-want ter see g-gen-u-i-n-e n-nourishment, jest range er-ne long side o' sixteen c-cent on o' Southern Indiana w-w-hisky an' 'bout twenty-eight g-grains o' quinine. That's what I call soup."

Politics on the Border.

Even the little ones have caught the craze and are classifying themselves according to their political predilections. "What's your miss about her own age, the other day. 'Well,' she replied, after a moment of profound thought, 'I ain't sure. Papa is a 'Publican, mamma's a Democrat, and so I guess I must be a half-breed.'"

Louisville Times: Western girls seem to have as keen an eye to the main chances as our eastern sisters. A prairie pansy, sunning at Washaka, was asked by a Texas sunflower if she would share his lot, and the pat reply was: "Yes, if it is a corner one, and you will build on it."
